

White Wildflower

Pink Wildflower

Red Wildflower

Star-Shaped
Wildflower

NORTH CAROLINA
BOTANICAL GARDEN

Wildflower
Scavenger Hunt

How many can you find?

Fewer Than 5 Petals

Orange Wildflower

Yellow Wildflower

Purple Wildflower

Find a white wildflower. Bloodroot's name comes from its root-like rhizome filled with bright red sap. The red sap was once used as a dye.	Find a pink wildflower. Pineland phlox is a favorite food for hummingbirds and other pollinators who feast on its nectar.	Find a red wildflower. Wild columbine disperse, or spread, their seeds by bursting open their seed pods flinging seeds away from existing plants.
Find a star-shaped wildflower. This small star-shaped wildflower is common yellow wood-sorrel whose leaves look like clover.	Wildflower Scavenger Hunt Wildflowers are herbaceous flowering plants. A plant is considered native if it has evolved naturally in a region.   NORTH CAROLINA BOTANICAL GARDEN 	Find a wildflower with fewer than 5 petals. This great white trillium and other trilliums have 3 petals and 3 bracts. Bracts are specialized leaves found on some plants like trillium and dogwoods.
Find an orange wildflower. Butterfly milkweed attracts many pollinators, especially butterflies. This is one of several milkweed species on which monarch butterflies lay eggs.	Find a yellow wildflower. Trout lilies bloom in spring and are named after their speckled, oval leaves which look similar to the fish. Look on the forest floor for this wildflower.	Find a purple wildflower. Violets can be found in a variety of places from sunny yards to shady forests. Most violets have heart-shaped leaves.