Thirty-two years ago, a Carrboro artist named Kathleen Buck had a vision. What if sculptors were inspired by the natural beauty of the North Carolina Botanical Garden to produce unique works of art? Held during fall, the changing landscape of the exhibit creates settings with unique vibrancy week after week. Visiting just once is an injustice to the art, to the flora, and mostly to oneself for being denied the experience of brush strokes on a different canvas. It is art that makes the Garden . . . and a Garden that makes the art.

32nd ANNUAL

Sculpture in the Garden

September 13–December 6, 2020

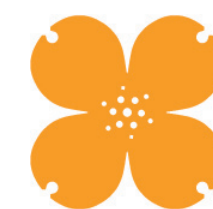

#31 - Remember by Theresa Arico

Welcome! Every fall, Sculpture in the Garden brings the work of local artists to the North Carolina Botanical Garden. This year's show features 61 installations by 41 artists. As you walk through the exhibit, look for artists' statements on the numbered black signs to learn more about each sculpture. Back at home, vote for your favorite on our website and share your experience with us on social media: @ncbotanicalgarden #sculptureinthegarden

Sculpture in the Garden is an exhibit within an exhibit: please help us protect both our garden beds and the sculptures by staying on paths and keeping hands clear of the artwork.

Sculptures are for sale unless marked NFS (not for sale), but all remain on site until the end of the show. 30% of each sale benefits the Garden.

Our display gardens make for an ever-changing setting: we hope you'll visit the show more than once over the course of the season to enjoy how changes in foliage, flowers, weather, and wildlife shed new light on each piece. Happy exploring!
